

Priyankaa Draws a Smiley Face

I put a notebook and box of crayons in middle of the living room. I watched Priyankaa as she came into the room and immediately start making lines and circles on notebook with crayons.

She was using different color crayons to make paper more colorful. She boldly drew different lines and circles. As she seemed to become really interested in drawing I started taking pictures. As you can see in the picture she started making lines with different colors.

She kept switching between two pages. She marked on first page and then she marked on second page.

She stopped for little bit and started working on only one page like she was making something.

She held two different color crayons in her both hands and started making circles and lines. She seemed to be drawing an image,

So I asked her,
“What are you
drawing?”
“A smile face,”
Piryankaa replied.

Then I remembered that she liked smiley faces because when ever she saw me drawing she wanted me to make a smiley face.

What it means...

I am really amazed with your ability to draw, Priyankaa. As young as you are, you are very intelligent and talented.

It was really interesting watching you making a smiley face which I first thought was scribble of lines and circles.

I am glad you like drawing and your drawing was really beautiful with all the colors.

Opportunities and Possibilities

You are really good at art, and to get even better you can get a coloring book and fill out pictures with different colors. You can try to draw more shapes, too. You can even use clay to make different shapes, even smiley faces!

As intelligent as you are you can learn really quickly.

Thank you.

Parent's Voice

My daughter, Priyankaa loves to draw with her crayons. She would play with her notebook and crayons for long periods of time. Sunita draws pictures of teddy bears and other animals for her. Priyankaa loves smiley faces. She would constantly keep asking Sunita to draw them for her. Its fun watching them both draw stuff, together.

Also her creative thinking seems to be growing day by day as she draws more things. She would ask Sunita to draw new things like things she saw on TV or read in a book. Sunita encourages her by drawing things that she asks for and helping her draw the same. The pictures Sunita took are wonderful.
